 - TDP related comments 13, 19, 148, 146, some of 158, 149
 - If we don’t adopt the Tx VEC alternative to TDP test, then should we update the TDP value and TDP test Rx bandwidth to take out the effect of chromatic dispersion ?
- Discussion:
- Comment 173: It was agreed that a better response would be:

“Proposed accept in principle: The agreed link model showed no link distance could be guaranteed without the RS-FEC, (see petrilla_03_1112_mmf). Add footnote to Table 95-5 stating “FEC may not be disabled for any reach”. Add footnote to Table 95.1, RS-FEC row: “The option of disabling the Clause 91 FEC may not be used”.

Final wording is to be agreed in comment resolution in Indian Wells.
- TDP related comments: There was Lengthy discussion on link modeling of TDP and the proposed TxVEC test, but no clear consensus on how to address TDP related comments should the Tx VEC test not be adopted in Indian Wells. Several presentations, as yet unseen, are scheduled for review during the Indian Wells meeting are associated with comments on TDP and the proposed TxVEC test.
